

DEAN STREET TOWNHOUSE

SOHO HOUSE
ART COLLECTION

Introduction by Kate Bryan,
Chief Art Director of Soho House

Soho House's global art collection was founded at Dean Street Townhouse. Although the company is over 30 years old, it was only when this site opened in 2009 that the idea for a permanent art collection took hold.

Soho House's founder, Nick Jones invited his friend the artist Jonathan Yeo to visit the site whilst it was under construction and together they realised that a large collection of salon style works would transform the atmosphere of the restaurant.

Jonathan Yeo suggested a model based on the beloved French hotel and restaurant, La Colombe d'Or in Provence, where artists such as Alexander Calder and Henri Matisse traded their work for hospitality. Jonathan curated the collection with arts writer Francesca Gavin and they acquired work from a brilliant line up of London talent including Damien Hirst, Tracey Emin, Gavin Turk, Keith Tyson, Polly Morgan and Peter Blake. All of the artwork was monochromatic and modest in size, hung in an energetic salon style throughout the space.

The majority of the original work remains on display and has been complimented over the years by the addition of new works such as pieces by Nicole Wermers and Yinka Shonibare. In 2018 Kate Bryan, Chief Art Director of Soho House curated the Parlour with eight young women artists who each presented at least 3 pieces: Marie Jacotey, France -Lise McGurn, Delphine Lebourgeois, Hattie Stewart, Kimberly Klauss, May Hands, Scarlett Bowman, and Florence Peake. This was an introduction of colour and larger scale work.

The bedrooms of the hotel all contain artworks including an painting edition by Annie Kevans which reworks the famous polaroid of Andy Warhol in drag.
