SOHO HOUSE
ART COLLECTION

Introduction by Sara Terzi
Head of Art Collection of Soho House

The Electric House art collection was refreshed in summer 2023 in conjunction with a new design approach that transformed the existing space. Taking inspiration from a much-loved artwork by Julian Opie that did and still does welcome members into the House, the Outline collection is formed of 50 artists whose work puts a spotlight on the primacy of line and plays with the concept of negative and positive areas.

The House features three site-specific commissions. In the snug, Charlotte Edey has created a new series of works based on Clotho, the Greek mythological figure who spun the thread of life from her distaff onto her spindle and, in so doing, decided the fate of humans. The parallel between line and thread expands across the room in the drawings, rug and tv cover made by the artist. For the dining room, Anousha Payne painted four large scale canvases that expand on her ongoing fascination with storytelling and Indian folklore, with mysterious characters in elongated forms that appear to be resting from their feats. In the library, Martha Hviid has created a work on carpet featuring a paper plane in motion, as if moved by the heat of the fireplace above which it is displayed.

Key artworks in the new hang include artists like Tunji Adeniyi-Jones, Korakrit Arunanondchai, Monica Bonvicini, Godfried Donkor, Mary Evans, Donna Huddleston, Allison Katz and Caragh Thuring.
